Thank you so much, Robin. And now I’m going to turn the mike over to Jacqueline Halbig from the Center for Faith-Based and Community Initiatives in the Department of Labor to give closing remarks. Jacqueline?

Thank you. The Center for Faith-Based and Community Initiatives is delighted to have been able to partner with the Women’s Bureau in presenting such useful information on facing a financial crisis growing out of a natural disaster like Hurricane Katrina. I want to commend everybody for their participation and also for their very salient and pertinent questions.

And I wanted to just mention that you can find further information on the Department of Labor Web site for the hurricane recovery assistance. You can just go straight to our Web site, which Jacqui Shoholm mentioned earlier -- www.dol.gov. The first page that comes up is all about hurricane recovery assistance and income support and jobs.

And I wanted to mention to you, we had mentioned already the 1-866 number, but I just think that’s again necessary to reiterate. If you need unemployment insurance or disaster unemployment assistance, the main number to call is –1-866-4-USA-DOL and that’s in number form, 1-866-487-2365. And under each heading there is a state number. So Alabama, Louisiana and Mississippi residents can call the number within their state.

I’m going to just give you those numbers because I think we have an awful lot of people that would like them. Alabama residents can call 1-866-234-5382. Louisiana residents can call 1-866-783-5567, and Mississippi residents can call 1-888-844-3577. Please use those numbers liberally, and pass them along to your friends who’ve been also affected by this hurricane. Additionally, you can go to our Web site. We invite you to take a look around at www.dol.gov/cfbei [the Center for Faith-Based and Community Initiatives, U.S. Department of Labor].

First of all, I would like to thank our presenters, Meloni Hallock, Victoria Melvin, Nancy Montoya, Brent Neiser and Robin Taylor for their excellent presentations. And I certainly want to just again thank you for participating in the online and classroom versions of Wi$e Up -- Wi$e Up partners and mentors, members of the general public and last, but not least, our partners in the faith-based and community organizations who’ve been very helpful in helping those who’ve been affected by Hurricane Katrina and who have also helped us publicize this teleconference call.

And I would also like to reiterate that, as our operator said earlier today, today’s call is being recorded. The audio recording and transcript will be accessible on the Wi$e Up Web site, which is www.wiseupwomen.org, and the audio and transcript of the previous Wi$e Up teleconference calls can also be found there.

And that will conclude our call for today. Thank you again for participating and we hope you’ll join our call again next month. Thank you so much.

Coordinator Thank you. This does conclude the conference call. You may disconnect at this time.
